HENRY FORD AND PEACE.

Governor Ferguson declined the invitation of Henry J. Ford, the million-dollar automobile maker to join his peace party to Europe. Official business was given by the governor as the reason for his inability to become a member of this most remarkable, as well as vastly important delegation. Mr. Ford is extending invitations, not only to the governors of the States, but to other officials, prominent party leaders, ministers, college heads and students' organizations. If Mr. Ford succeeds in making up his party on the broad and comprehensive lines as planned, there is no telling the results that may be accomplished in pleading for peace when joined by the peace parties of other neutral nations. President Wilson is lending his influence to the undertaking and says his only reason for hesitating when the matter was first proposed, was not that he did not earnestly desire peace, but he was apprehensive the time was not opportune.

"Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," and should Mr. Ford succeed in bringing to a close the terrible holocaust of blood now consuming Europe it would be the greatest peace victory recorded in the world's annals.

Who knows but what the Lord has raised Mr. Ford up and given him all his millions for this very work? He says he is willing to give all the money that he has and go anywhere if it will bring peace. This declaration proves his consecration to the task, and with such consecration and with the means to carry out his plans, all opposition will fade away, even though it be the vengeful wrath of nations and the ambitions of kings.

We believe in Henry Ford and praise his noble undertaking, and whether he succeeds or fails, he will have won his place in history.

WE NEED THEM.

There has been enough sweet potatoes raised in Madison County this year to build a fence around it, horse high, bull strong and hog tight, but we are short on 'possums. If some county will furnish the 'possums, we'll furnish the taters, and oh! what a Christmas dinner we will have.—Madisonville Meteor.

A fence of good old yellow yams is far better than the great wall of China. And crops of feedstuffs, like the potato crop of Madison County, is the kind of preparedness this country needs.—Bryan Eagle.

But you didn't say a word about the real issue. What the Meteor wants to know is whether you can furnish the 'possums. The information we gather is that Brazos County is the home of that little animal, and he is there in countless numbers. Anyway, if you can't come across with enough let us know and Grimes will produce the goods.—Navasota Examiner.

"Possum and taters," as indicated by the Meteor, make a fine combination, in fact a perfectly balanced ration, and while we have the 'possums, we also have the taters, and they are needed for home consumption. The people of Brazos County have accepted the preachings of the Eagle to "live at home," and our 'possum crop contributes largely to making our people self-supporting. If Wild Bill Turner of the Meteor and Ed Blackshear of the Examiner will come to see us, however, we promise to set them down to the finest, fattest, juiciest 'possum they ever saw, baked to a turn and staked and ridged with ten-inch Dookeys with the candy oozing out of them.

LARGE FIRES FROM SMALL BLAZES.

Speaking of what great things come from small beginnings, and what serious results may come from little and insignificant trifles, we note the following from the Texas City Times: "In Mississippi a man murdered another in, as witnesses declared, cold blood. He was in jail awaiting trial. A 16-year-old school girl wrote a poem which a local newspaper published. It contained this prayer in one stanza:

"And he who severed the golden chain,
Who wrapped a home in mourning,
May God will that he know the pain
Of summons without warning."

"The poem caught the eye, held the fancy. It was read on the street corners, in the homes and even in places of business; by individuals, by knots of low-voiced men. Forty-eight hours after the poem appeared in print, the jail was stormed and the murderer lynched. The appeal had proved irresistible, the prayer had been answered.

"We pass over the ethics of it. What fixes the interest is the peculiar appeal of poetry to the emotions. Quite likely the same words in prose would have attracted comparatively little attention. The country well remembers the jingle published in a New York paper at the time of the Goebel trial, which many claim was directly responsible for the assassination of President McKinley. The potency of rhyme had penetrated the crazed mind of an assassin.

"In both these cases it was an influence for evil. Fortunately, such cases are rare, for poetry should inspire to nobler deeds and lives."

Col. Bob Miller says editorially in the Rusk County News that "if the nations of the world were to spend half as much money in teaching the people how to live, as they spend in teaching them how to kill each other, we would be able to show some very high ideals in civilization—higher than was ever dreamed of by the philosophers of old."

The Eagle is in receipt of Vol. 1, No. 1 of the Marlin Review, with J. A. Kelwin and S. P. Forest editors and publishers. The new publication is given a modest beginning, its projects giving it plenty of room to grow upward.

CLARK FIELD WILL BE ENLARGED NEXT SEASON.

Texas Stadium Must Accommodate 8,000 for the A. and M. Game.

[By Associated Press.] Austin, Texas, Nov. 30.—Plans for an enlarged Clark Field to care for the crowds next Thanksgiving Day are being made by the athletic authorities of the University of Texas. At present the field will accommodate but 5,000 persons and it is pushed in doing that. The new stands when completed will seat 8,000 football enthusiasts who will witness the Farmer-Longhorn game of next year.

The bleachers at the north end of Clark Field will be removed and in their stead will be new stands with a seating capacity double the present dilapidated framework.

On the east side of Clark Field the bleachers will be built twice as high as they are at present so that all the rooters can assemble on the same side of the field. The grand stands will be lengthened and about 500 additional box seats will be built.

The schedule for the Longhorns is fast rounding into shape and at present Director L. T. Bellmont has seven games of the 1916 schedule practically arranged.

STREET FORCE DOING GOOD WORK.

The city street forces have just completed work on East Anderson street, which was graded and drained from the court house east to the Catholic Church, and are now at work on West Moseley street. City Engineer Adams reports that within the past month the street forces have graded and drained about a mile of residence streets, have laid 40 plank street crossings, repaired 20 old crossings and have built several bridges. The city street force at present is costing the city about $70 per week, which pays for the street grading, sweeping of the paved streets and cleaning up the trash in the business sections. Mr. Adams says with the present organization he believes he could grade and drain the streets of the entire city within one year.

THE BIG CARNIVAL OPENED LAST NIGHT

Large Crowds Turned Out and All Were Pleased With the Attractions.

About three thousand people braved the chilly night air last evening and "took in" the C. A. Wortham Show. Mr. Wortham has given us a glimpse of the best shows that have ever paid this city a visit, not one thing thus far has been misrepresented, in fact, we found more than what the show's press agent claimed—a marvelous thing, 'tis true, but nevertheless it's true. It was worth the effort and comfort of leaving a good fireside and becoming a carnivalite. For the shows are good; not one of them, but all of them. We failed to find anything that had the tinge of "girls," and we are honest enough to "fess up" that we looked all over the midway to find something "that belongs with most carnival obligations," but it can't be done; there is nothing there, fathers, brothers and husbands, that you need be afraid of. You can send your children and wives to see the Wortham Shows and you can rest assured that anything that may tempt in the way of amusement will be found clean and wholesome.

The Wild West and Society Horse Shows combined, which is conducted by Col. Zack Mulhall, a pioneer frontiersman, gave but one performance last night, but that was to a full house, and it was certainly a splendid performance. Miss Lucille Mulhall is the star of the show, and the way that young lady handles and rides a horse is a caution. Miss Mulhall can give anyone cards and spades riding a horse that we ever saw, not even excepting cowboy experts. Miss Mulhall was here, there and everywhere, and at all times was the "master." Mr. Fred Collier gave an exhibition with high school horses, and ran Lucille a close second for honors. The show itself consists of fancy riding, broncho busting, roping and the art of handling educated equines. It's well worth your time and money.

The Hippodrome and Wild Animal Show combined is another "big" show in all that word implies; it is about the biggest carnival attraction in the country; it is jammed full of good circus acts and if there was no other attraction but LaBelle Salina on the entire bill, the show would be worth the admission fee, and then some, for this young lady does more with a group of wild animals than anything of this nature you ever witnessed before. She is in a class to herself. These animals do everything but talk. LaBelle Salina commands them to push baby carriages, play teeter totter, jump hurdles, form pyramids, eat raw meat out of her hands and mouth, and in their midst, without gun or weapon, she dances a Spanish dance with her skirts brushing the sides of these big monster brutes.

The Panama Canal is the educational feature of the midway, and this canal model is the only one that shows all of the workings of the locks and boats, in real water. This exhibition is not a plaything, but real practical model; one that does instruct, and Capt. LaDare and Lieut. Persons, the lecturers, give a very interesting talk covering all the points of interest and it is a pleasure to listen to these orators as they exercise great pains to go into detail and explain the very things one wants to know. Your trip to the Wortham Shows is not complete without paying the Panama Canal a visit.

Mysteria is termed as the show beautiful, and it is in every particular. Miss Louise Blake, the star, or in other words, "Mysteria" herself, is a very charming and beautiful woman, and her own personal individuality and magnetism plays no small part in her wonderful electrical performances. Miss Blake shows some very handsome gowns and her show is another one of the worth-while type.

The above is only a small partial list of the good things that line the midway and in conclusion will say that the Austo-Drome, where Mlle. Marie rides an automobile around a small perpendicular track, assisted by four male riders, is an attraction that borders on the sensational, and if one wants his blood to chill and feel funny feelings up and down his spinal cord, this is the one place to visit, as old "death" is flirted with at every performance.

OPENING MEXICO FOR FOREIGNERS

Letter to Congressman Slayden Told of Return of Mines Which Were Seized Some Time Ago.

[By Associated Press.] Washington, Nov. 30.—Information conveyed Monday by Secretary of State Lansing to Congressman Slayden of San Antonio indicates that rapid progress is being made in opening up interior Mexico to foreigners, especially Americans. When the mines of Mexico were seized by the Carranza government it developed that in a majority of cases Mexicans owned but a minority interest, yet this was sufficient to give the Carranzistas something upon which to hinge their seizure, much to the annoyance and serious loss of Americans who in most instances owned a majority of the stock in the seized mines. Six or eight weeks ago Representative Slayden took up the matter of having the coal mines of Coahuila returned to their American managers and when Consul Silliman was on the border with Carranza he went over the subject with him. The result has been that the mines are to be released and reopened.

In a message from Secretary Lansing to Representative Slayden this information is set forth as follows: "Mr. Silliman reports Coahuila government has informed him it is now willing to receive at Saltillo foreign representatives of coal mines of that State and to arrange with them for delivering the mines to foreign owners and for their operation by owners."

Representative Slayden arrived here Sunday, after a visit to Tennessee, Florida and Georgia, where he was invited to deliver a series of addresses on the subject of a Pan-American policy such as has been the outgrowth of the recent joint action of the State department and South American ambassadors and diplomats. He says this policy means both peace and commerce. He was among the first to propose joint action between the United States and South American countries looking to the establishment of peace in Mexico and he has also advocated an extension of this idea to insure closer commercial relations between the countries of this continent as well as the cementing of closer bonds of peace. In his speeches he advocated general encouragement of this sort of a Pan-American union.
